FLEDGLINGS

(26:10 min)

Director : Cedar Wright

New hobbies that quickly become obsessions are not uncommon for residents of Boulder. Fledglings follows professional climbers Cedar Wright and Matt Segal and their foray into the sport of paragliding. Tree landings, sketchy winds, and junkshow launches become part of their new vernacular. After just six months, Wright and Segal embark on an ambitious mission: to climb and fly off of 18,491 foot peak, Orizaba.

FLASHES OF THE ALTAI

(5 min)

Director: Joey Schusler

Three childhood friends set out for the far western corner of Mongolia to combine mountain biking and packrafting in a self-supported adventure into the unknown. Never having attempted a mountain bike to packraft link-up, they decided it was a great idea to travel to one of the most remote and sparsely populated places in the world to try it out.

DOUGLAS TOMPKINS: A WILD LEGACY

(15:51 min)

Director: James Q Martin and Chris Cresci

Producer: Alison Kelman

From when the film Mountain of Storms documented his trip from California to Patagonia in 1968 until his tragic death in 2015, Douglas Tompkins was a celebrated adventurer. He also gained world-renown for his success in branding companies such as The North Face and Esprit, as well as for his work in conservation through which he and his wife, Kristine McDivitt Tompkins, protected 2.2 million acres of land. A Wild Legacy tells the story of the life, work, and adventures of this inspiring individual, and portrays the efforts of Kristine and the Tompkins Conservation team to continue his mission.

BEING HERE

(4:46 min)

Director/Producer: Hilary Oliver

A visual poem offering a reminder that venturing into the wilderness offers a unique glance into a two way mirror. Through it, we have a lens to the beauty of nature, yet can simultaneously reflect inwards to see our own bravery, vulnerability and connectivity to our world.

ART OF RECOVERY

(20:00 min)

"Causes"

Director/Producer: Victor Duran, Nick Greece

"Art of Recovery"

Director/Producer: Jeremy Collins, Nick Greece

After Nepal's earthquake of April 2015, a small band of accidental rescue workers went into the epicenter of the disaster for 56 days. Six months later, a paraglider, artist, and photographer follow the path of the rescue team in a unique way, using their particular talents to eventually raise money and bring hope to those most affected.

CHINA: A SKIER'S JOURNEY

(16:00 min)

Directed and Produced by Jordan Manley

Skiing as sport is in its infancy in China, a phenomenon of the country's rapidly growing middle class. As a means of survival however, it is thousands of years old, born out of necessity in the Altai mountains at the intersection of China, Mongolia, Kazakhstan and Siberia. Chad Sayers and Forrest Coats touch down into the rich past and dizzying future of these contrasting Chinese ski cultures. As one rapidly expands, they find the other is at risk of disappearing.

KID WARRIOR

(6:31 min)

Director: Vanessa Black

Producer: BLKFLM + Anchorlight Production

The planet doesn't need saving. We do. Xiuhtezcatl Roske-Martinez is not your average 14 year old. He is mobilizing teens in over 50 countries to demand greener policy from world leaders.

THE LIVING FOREST

(9 min)

Director: Marc Silver

Producer: Caroline Bennett

In the Sarayaku region of the Ecuadorian Amazon, a Kichwa tribe fights to protect its land from exploitation and destruction. A canoe is built to represent Sarayaku culture at the COP21 climate conference in Paris and to share with the world an age-old knowledge of our interconnectivity with each other and with nature.

HAYWIRE

(14:29 min)

Director: Cheyne Lempe

Dave Allfrey and Cheyne Lempe experience the wild beauty of Baffin Island, and this is their story about a dream that goes haywire. A terrifying mishap results in the contemplation of life and the cost of adventure.

THE ACCORD

(20:00 min)

Director: RC Cone

A poetic film about an Icelandic surfer, the challenges he faces at the hands of the personified, heavily-bearded North Atlantic wind, and his conviction that if you listen carefully, an understanding can be reached between nature and the pursuit of your passion.

THE TRAIL TO KAZBEGI

(15:30 min)

Director: Joey Schusler

Four adventurers head into the highest portions of the Georgian Caucasus--one of earth's wildest mountain ranges--with nothing but their bicycles and enough supplies for ten days. On what becomes a half-year-long journey, they face vicious elemental obstacles, but the tradeoff is a glimpse of unparalleled local hospitality and some of the most magnificent views they have ever encountered.

DARKLIGHT

(7:31 min)

Director: Mike Brown Producer: Zac Ramras

The temperate rainforest of the Pacific Northwest and southern Utah desert both offer world-class mountain biking. However, Darklight pushes the creative bounds of the sport and these locales. With the aid of thousands of pounds of lighting equipment and a tireless crew, this landscape quickly evolves into something otherworldly.
